Answer

Assal?mu `alaikum Warahmatull?hi Wabrakatuh,

Waswasa could either be genuine whispers of the Shaitaan or due to some sickness. If it is due to a sickness which is generally diagnosed by a phsychiatrist or clinical phycologist, then such waswasa or thoughts are treatable. Your husband is now on tablets. We hope and make dua Allah grant him shifaa. Aameen.

You state you also get waswasa about Allah and Islam. You also indicate that you get these waswasa frequently when you get ill. It is important to diagnose whether your waswasa is similar to your husband?s waswasa and you require medical assistance like him. You may consider exploring that avenue.

If your waswasa are whispers of Shaitaan, then if they are involuntary and just come in the mind of their own, you should not worry. Simply ignore such thoughts. Do not pay attention whatsoever to such thoughts. Shaitaan puts these thoughts to divert your attention from useful thoughts to useless and insignificant thoughts. You will find yourself consumed in something useless and tangled thereby frustrating yourself. That is the root to many evils, anger, frustration, tiredness, despair, suicidal thoughts etc. This is what is Shaitaan?s objective. The simple remedy to such thoughts is to ignore them and don?t bother. This will be a smack on Shaitaan?s face. Shaitaan will feel humiliated and not attempt his evil plot on you again. Simply read ???? ?????? ?????? ?????? ?????? ?????????? ?????????? ?????????? and ?????????? ?????????? ?????? ?????????????????? ??????????????.

Also, remember having such thoughts are a clear sign of leman. If you did not have leman in you, Shaitaan would not bother. Once sahabi complained to Rasulullah Salla Allahu Alayhi wa Sallam about such thoughts. Rasulullah Salla Allahu Alayhi wa Sallam advised him "That is clear sign of leman?". Such thoughts are like the different scenes on a journey. One does not stop to watch every scene on the journey, he glances at it and continues. Similarly, continue with your normal life and don't let these thoughts stop you in any way. If you do so, you are inviting trouble to yourself. Such thoughts are similar to a live wire. You stay away, you are safe; you touch it you shock yourself.

And Allah Ta'ala Knows Best,
